The probabilities are that prices will be about the same as last year. Picking will begin about September 10. Forty cents a box will probably be be paid for picking.

The growers seem to be pretty well agreed that not more than forty cents per box will be paid for picking. They say that for several years the pickers were the only ones who got anything out of the hop crop. They made wages while the growers were losing money, so that even though hops bring a much better price this year the pickers should be satisfied with a 40 cent rate, at which good wages can be made in the excellent ondition of the yards.
